A lot of books were incorporated into this poster. The idea behind the image is that in literature, among a plethora of different books and genres, everyone acquires a personal taste. In a café, you can order many delicious foods and beverages; in a library, it is easy to “order up” a good read. Because of the variety of choices, we aren’t stuck with the same flavor of book. Trying to eat the book, however, is discouraged. Enjoy! Bon Appétit.
