Dan Hunt taught Spanish language and literature, Latin American history, and Honors Humanities at Idaho State University for more than twenty five years before retiring in 2017. An Idaho native, he was also educated at Idaho State, earning his Doctor and Master of Arts degrees in English and his Bachelor of Arts in Spanish and Anthropology. Among other things, he has written about humor, politics and history in Hispanic detective fiction and the art of teaching baroque poetry in Spanish. He has been a Let's Talk About It program scholar since the 1990s.
