

Reading takes you
Higher! Higher!
What's in the sky?
What's on the ground?
Draw something!

If you want me to be a good reader, please read aloud to me every day, even when I start reading on my own. Here's why:

- My listening level is higher than my reading level. I can understand more complicated stories when you read them to me.
- When you read to me you help me build background knowledge, vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension skills.
- You can ask me lots of questions about what we're reading, and we can talk about the stories.
- You can read me lots of different things that help me learn about my interests, like magazines and information books.
- I love when you spend time with me! Reading to me lets us relax together, and shows me you love me.

A message from your local library and:

Idaho Commission for Libraries

INSTITUTE of Museum and Library SERVICES