

Let's Talk About It – Program Scholar

Mary Clearman Blew
(208) 885-7337
mblew@uidaho.edu
English Dept.
University of Idaho
Moscow, ID 83844

Mary Clearman Blew is a Professor of English at the University of Idaho. She is the author of the acclaimed essay collection All But the Waltz, a memoir, Balsamroot, and three books of short stories, most recently Sister Coyote (2001). She has also edited Written on Water: Essays on Idaho Rivers by Idaho Writers (A second volume in a projected four-volume elemental series--Forged in Fire--was released in 2005, co-edited with Phil Druker.) Her own most recent publication is her first novel Jackalope Dreams (2008). Her stories have been reprinted in both the Best American and O'Henry collections. She has won the Pacific Northwest Booksellers Award twice, once in fiction and once in nonfiction. In 2004, she received the "Distinguished Achievement Award" from the Western Literature Association.