Two Treasure Valley school libraries test program to stop the “summer slide”

BOISE, Idaho — Schools may be out for the summer, but libraries at two in the Treasure Valley are staying open during the break thanks to an innovative pilot project the Idaho Commission for Libraries is undertaking.

The libraries at Desert Sage Elementary in Meridian and Wilson Elementary in Caldwell are remaining open 2-3 days per week to help stop the “summer slide” that occurs when young minds sit idle for three months. ICfL is working with Boise State University literacy professor Dr. Roger Stewart to research whether opening school libraries over the summer can maintain or increase youth literacy skills.

The Desert Sage Elementary library is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. through Aug. 7. The library at Wilson Elementary is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. through Aug. 7.

Four other Idaho schools are participating, including Fernan Elementary in Coeur d’Alene, Horizon Elementary in Jerome, Lakeside Elementary in Plummer, and Mountain View Elementary in Burley. All six schools serve populations where at least 60 percent of students come from low-income homes. ICfL also provided 9,369 free paperback books to 3,194 students at the six participating schools toward the end of the school year.

State Librarian Ann Joslin said the initial results have been positive. “The book distribution went well and kids seemed to love the selections,” she said. “The students at Lakeside Elementary were amazed they don’t have to bring the books back and can keep them until they’re old. Meanwhile, Desert Sage had more than 30 kids show up to check out books on its library’s first day of summer hours, and they’ve decided to remain open an extra half-hour to better meet demand.”

The project is made possible in part by the Institute of Museum and Library Services.

The Idaho Commission for Libraries helps libraries build the capacity to better serve their clientele by supporting statewide databases and online resources, continuing education, consulting, programming, early literacy skills, and building library community.
