Talking Book Service News

TBS Awareness Day and Library Snapshot Day

The Idaho Talking Book Service (TBS) had two opportunities to increase its visibility throughout the state this year: TBS Awareness Day and Library Snapshot Day.

On March 3, TBS staff, friends, and users celebrated the 80th anniversary of the creation of the National Library Service (NLS), the agency that provides TBS's audiobooks and players. 80 people attended the Open House at the Idaho Commission for Libraries.

Highlights included reading a Proclamation from Governor Otter proclaiming March 3, 2011 Talking Book Awareness Day and displays on the history of the Talking Book Service nationwide and in Idaho. Statewide events included press releases to all newspapers in the state, a special issue of the TBS newsletter, and TBS displays hosted by 36 public libraries throughout the state.

TBS Awareness Day display

In April, TBS participated in Library Snapshot Day. This event is sponsored annually by the American Library Association and focuses on the diverse activities that occur in libraries on one day in April. On April 19, the following TBS-related activities occurred at the Commission:

- Items checked out: 1,716
- Items checked in: 1,691
- Phone calls: 50
- Emails: 31
- Walk-in users: 6
- New users: 9
- Volunteers: 25
- Volunteer hours: 47

Promoting the Talking Book Service to eligible users remains a priority for the staff. You can help by sharing what you like about the service with friends, relatives, and neighbors.

National Library Service Visit

The Idaho Talking Book Service welcomed National Library Service (NLS) regional consultant Vickie Collins for a three-day visit in April. NLS staff visits Talking Book Service agencies biennially to review their operations, discuss any issues they have, and identify successful activities to share with other Talking Book Services throughout the U.S. Vickie toured the library, talked with many staff, and noted the positive things happening at the Talking Book Service. She also attended the annual Volunteer Appreciation luncheon and thanked the many volunteers who support TBS through a variety of activities. Vickie will submit a written report about her findings later in the year.

Eligible institutions can now register with BARD

Institutions that are registered with the Idaho Talking Book Service may now register to download books from BARD, the National Library Service database of digital titles for those unable to read standard print due to a physical disability.

Institutions such as Nursing homes, hospitals, schools for the blind, public and private schools, and college or university disability centers may borrow equipment and download reading materials for use by eligible patrons in either a group setting or for individual use.

Over 20,000 titles are available from BARD. Once you have downloaded a book to your computer, you can transfer it to a flash-memory "jump" drive, to a personal book cartridge (available for purchase), or directly to a third-party player, such as the Victor Reader Stream.

For more information call the Idaho Talking Book Service at 800-458-3271 or visit our website at <http://libraries.idaho.gov/TBS>.

What Are You Reading?

Conversations With God is Dian Scott's favorite book. Dian, the new Office Services Supervisor at ICfL, reads extensively throughout the cool and cold seasons in Idaho, but living on 10 acres with horses limits her summer reading time! Conversations With God by Neale Donald Walsch, is the book Dian always picks up when she wants to calm anxiety, relax stress, and just feel good about her life in spite of challenges and the state of the world. Especially in crisis or chaos, this is the book that makes it all okay in the end. It's one that Dian keeps near and reads parts of over and over, always seeming to find the answer she needs in its pages. Conversations With God is available on digital cartridge: # VDB 44643

Dian enjoys reading novels, especially those with some humor or historical basis. Nelson Demille is an author whose books she can count on to make her laugh out loud as she's reading. Demille uses a dry wit, sometimes cynical, sometimes sarcastic, but always spot on and sharp.

For a delightful light-hearted read, her pick is Cold Flat Junction by Martha Grimes. Written in the voice of a young girl experiencing many adventures in her small town, this book is a favorite for its cleverness and humor in bringing to life a precocious youngster whom the reader suddenly wants to be like in her freshness and candor.

Magazine Corner

Idaho Yesterdays is a peer-reviewed journal devoted to publishing current research on the history and culture of Idaho and its region. A wide array of articles including folklore, political science, geography, anthropology, cultural studies and literature are featured. Idaho Yesterdays is produced quarterly and can also be read online at <http://idahoyesterdays.org>.

Idaho Landscapes: History, Science, and Art is the newest endeavor of the greatest historical minds in the state to produce a journal that is all about Idaho—as well as edited, produced, and published here in Idaho. Idaho Landscapes is produced intermittently.

McCall is a beautifully designed, award winning magazine that explores the history, culture, and lifestyle that makes McCall the resort of choice in southwest Idaho. McCall is published quarterly.

Customer Service Representative Retires

Laurel Day retired on May 27 after 25 years of working with the Idaho Talking Book Service (TBS). She began her career with TBS as a temporary records clerk who was quickly added to the customer service team. Her primary duties focused on working with users to help them find the reading materials they would enjoy. She also worked with collections, outreach, and as the administrator for TBS's automation system.

Laurel saw many changes over the years, including the transition from paper to automated records and the introduction of cassette players and books. Most recently, she participated in the transition from cassette players to digital players. Her interest in reading and fondness for those she served helped her always provide excellent customer service.

Laurel and her husband Rick look forward to spending more time together, including travelling. TBS staff is still adjusting to the reality of Laurel not being available to help whenever needed.

Laurel says she will miss all of the great conversations

Laurel and Rick Day: ready to begin some new adventures with the patrons and their recommendations of "good books." She plans on spending more time reading.

Good luck Laurel. We'll miss you!

Some people really love to read

A Talking Book Service library in Massachusetts contacted a patron who appeared inactive but was still active in their system. After some discussion the TBS user said, "I have had a stroke and I might have slowed down a little...but I will tell you, if I had a wife I would leave her before I gave up those talking books."

Volunteer Appreciation Week April 11–15, 2011

Idaho is in the top ten for volunteers per capita in the United States. That's not a big surprise to the Idaho Commission for Libraries (ICfL) where, in 2010, 95 volunteers donated 9,418 hours of their time to help with projects and programs.

To celebrate National Volunteer Week, April 11-15, and honor our ICfL volunteers, we began the week with a tour of the Old Idaho Penitentiary in Boise. Twenty volunteers and three staff members attended and everyone seemed to enjoy experiencing the cold, creepy, dark, dank cells. And no one was left locked up in solitary!

On Tuesday April 12, the Commission hosted a luncheon event with the theme "Everyday Heroes," and invited our volunteers to enjoy hero sandwiches and a presentation showcasing the work they've done through the past year.

When welcoming the volunteers to the event, State Librarian Ann Joslin told them, "You are our everyday heroes. Our staff has posted comments on the wall acknowledging the great work that our volunteers do here." According to Commission staff, volunteers come to the rescue by:

- leaping tall mailings in a single bound
- working at the speed of light
- being "force multipliers" so we can complete our mission
- brightening the days with endless acts of kindness

Volunteers take on work that supports Commission projects like literacy programs, networking and resource sharing, and the Talking Book Service—spending hours preparing Jump Start Kits, mailing Libraries Linking Idaho (LiLI) materials, repairing TBS machines, inspecting TBS tapes, recording Idaho books, and other tasks. Some Volunteer Coordinator Sheila Winther with volunteers June, Liz, Dale, and Nicole, who have given a combined total of 45 years of service statistics for 2010 include:

- New digital machines checked out to TBS patrons: 2,004
- Books on tape mailed and then received, inspected, and reshelved: 164,617 (122,459 cassettes and 42,158 digital)
- Digital books recorded: 54 titles (417 hours of recording time)
- Digital book cartridges duplicated: 283
- Books converted from cassette to digital: 89
- Book Plate stickers applied to books for early literacy: "thousands and thousands"

Other milestones for our 2010 volunteers:

- 5-year service certificates: Nicole Albertson, Dale Drew, Pam Fraser, Sue Vap
- 10-year service certificate: Liz Carpenter
- 15-year service certificate: June Ryther
- 1,000-hour awards: Sandy Batt, Norma Ericson, Jackie Kalinauskas, Patricia Kelley
- 2,000-hour award: Shirley Moss
- 3,000-hour award: Sue Vap
- 4,000-hour award: Fred Riddle

Sandy, Jackie, Norma, and Fred have clocked 7,000 hours of volunteering

This year the Telecom Pioneers of America celebrate 100 years of service to their communities. The Idaho TBS Telecom Pioneers have helped maintain and repair players for many years. In 2010, ICfL's Telecom Pioneers contributed 1,400 volunteer hours and repaired 823 machines.

In 2011 all recently locally recorded books will be available on cartridge only, as we will continue to convert our wonderful collection over to digital. Locally recorded books allow native Idahoans an opportunity to travel down memory lane and allows patrons new to Idaho to learn about Idaho. But don't worry we have a large supply of digital players. If you don't have one yet, call 800-458-3271 to request one today.
