VCT 686Far North Idaho Tales

Author: John Sater

Read by: Betty Weber

These stories are set in the tall timber and rugged mountain country of North Idaho, but the characters in the stories could come from any part of the world where good people live. These stories of chickens and skunks and cougars and, most especially, people, will bring chuckles of laughter and perhaps a tear or two.

1 Cassette

It takes 5 steps to create an Idaho Talking Book

First: The print books are requested on interlibrary loan or from the publishers. We review them to determine if they fit the criteria.

Second: They are assigned a narrator/monitor and a VCT number

Third: They are sent to the studio where they are recorded by a narrator, who reads the books while a monitor listens along and edits out errors as they occur.

Fourth: A reviewer then listens to the book, cleans up any background noises and marks any errors, the narrator then goes back in and makes any corrections.

Fifth: These audio files are then downloaded to cassette and announced in the TBS newsletter for your listening pleasure.

Buttermilk Curve

Author: Deana Jensen
Read by: Maryan Stephens
Not all pioneers who first broke the sage covered hills of south eastern Idaho to the plow were noble, altruistic, and virtuous as some historians would have us believe. Many were fugitives running away from circumstances they could no longer tolerate. Jensen's collection of ten short stories picture a conglomeration of such characters between 1860 and 1890 in a fictional frontier town of Buttermilk Curve, Idaho. With humor, satire and pathos the author's main purpose is to entertain. 2 Cassettes

Mary Quequesah's Love Story: A Pend d'Oreille Indian Tale:

Owl's Eyes and Seeking a Spirit: Kootenai Indian Stories

Author: Traditional Indian Stories
Read by: Maryan Stephens
Tales of buffalo-hunting, myths, and love stories.

Mary Quequesah confronts the difficulties of love. After Mary's husband leaves her, a wise old woman dreams of her sorrow and tells her how to win him back. While written at a fifth-grade reading level, this intriguing story will speak to readers of all ages.

Owl's Eyes & Seeking a Spirit--
Here are two traditional tales from the Flathead Indian Reservation in western Montana. For centuries Kootenai children and adults gathered on cold, dark winter nights to listen and learn from stories like these. Although written at a fourth-grade reading level, these tales can be enjoyed by all ages.

VCT 1031The Virgin Beauty

Author: Claire King

Read by: Tracie Lee

The new town veterinarian had a lot to offer--striking good looks, sharp wit, and a fantastic intellect. Yet so far, no man had been able to see beyond Grace McKenna's considerable height. So the virginal beauty couldn't contain her amazement when rancher Daniel Craig paid her some much needed attention. Trouble was, she didn't know if Daniels's attraction was real or motivated by a startling situation. Some very mild descriptions of sex.

Author: John Bieter

Read by: Patty Miller

In "An Enduring Legacy", brothers John and Mark Bieter chronicle three generations of Basque presence in Idaho from 1890 to the present. This is an engaging story that begins with a few solitary shepherders and follows their evolution into the prominent ethnic community of today. Over the century the Basques have been in Idaho, the choices and opportunities for each generation have created a subculture that is neither purely Basque nor purely American, but rather a very distinctive tile in the mosaic of the American immigrant experience.

VCT 707Pavlov's Trout, The Incomplete
Psychology of Everyday Fishing

Author: Paul Quinnett

Read by: Bob Stevenson

Fifty million Americans go fishing every year. But why? Eminent Idaho psychologist and veteran fisherman Paul Quinnett, PhD, explores the main, often mysterious, motivations that attract millions to the sport of fishing. In this lighthearted and insightful book, Quinnett postulates that people fish to satisfy primitive instincts, connect to the wilderness, relieve stress and to experience the optimism, freedom and excitement of pursuit. Pavlov's Trout is truly a fishing book like no other - a venturing into the world of the psyche of the angler, a world where it is better to fish hopefully than to catch fish.

VCT 768Life as a Geezer

Author: Phil Batt

Read by: Greg Winther

Idaho native and former Idaho Governor Philip E. Batt grew up in the small town of Wilder and spent much of his adult life there as a farmer. In the second book written following his retirement from the political life, Batt offers his unique perspective on what it means to be an "oldster"-from moving Happy Hour back to accommodate an early bedtime to the shenanigans of former "First Dog" Sniffer. His observations can be poignant, acerbic, or hysterically funny, but they are always a good read.

Author: David L. Bigler

Read by: Norma Ericson

1855 twenty-seven men set out from the young Mormon settlements in Utah to establish the northernmost colony of the Kingdom of God, with the American Indians. Building a fort in the Lemhi Valley, they began to proselyte among Sacagawea's Shoshone relatives as well as member of the Bannock, Nez Percé, and other tribes. Three years later, some of their Indian converts violently drove the colonists out and destroyed Fort Lemhi. Author David Bigler shows that the colony, known as the Salmon River Mission, played a pivotal role in the Utah War of 1857-1858 and that the catastrophic end of the mission was critical in keeping that conflict from becoming an all out war between Mormon Utah and the United States. In the process, he reconstructs a dramatic and compelling story involving stalwart Mormon frontiersmen, Brigham Young, a variety of Native American individuals and groups, the U. S. Army, and "mountaineers," as the surviving fur trade veterans now commonly know as "mountain men" called themselves.

1-800-458-3271VCT 1021*On All Sides Nowhere: Building a Life in Rural Idaho

Author: William Gruber

Read by: Tracie Lee

When Bill Gruber left New York City for graduate school in Idaho, he and his wife decided to experience true rural living. They bought an abandoned log cabin and its surrounding forty acres in Alder Creek, a town considered small even by Idaho standards. But farm living was far from bucolic. Gruber now had to rise with the sun to finish strenuous chores, cope with the lack of modern conveniences, and shed his city-slicker pretensions to become a real local. Despite these initial hardships, he came to realize that reality was far better than his wistful fantasies. Instead of solitude, he found a warm, welcoming community; instead of rural stolidity, he found intelligence and wisdom; instead of relaxation, he found satisfaction in working the land. What began as a two-year experiment became a seven-year love affair with a town he will always consider home.

But, her foster parents were told, she would never use any of her senses, never experience joy or love, never feel pain or any other physical sensation. And she would most likely die before she was two years old. Blaine and Kathy's response was simple: "If she needs a home, we'll be happy to give it to her." So Charity was adopted by the Yorgason family, and the miracles began. This astounding, true account is expanded in this edition to cover all the years of Charity's life, and includes many photographs. Her story is a stunning testimony of the power to the spirit, the love of God, and the purpose of mortality.

Author: Douglas J. Preston

Read by: Byron Johnsen

The author chronicles his journey on horseback retracing the path of sixteenth-century Spanish explorer Francisco Vasquez de Coronado across the American Southwest in search of the seven cities of gold. Woven into the narrative are natural history; stories heard from cowboys, Native Americans, and ranchers; and an account of the original expedition.

Strong language.

Read by:

Osborne Russell's journal covering the years 1834-1843 is, in the words of the editor, Aubrey L. Haines, "perhaps the best account of the fur trapper in the Rocky Mountains when the trade there was at it's peak. It is a factual, unembellished narrative written by one who was not only a trapper but also a keen observer and able writer."

IC 311LTAI*Blackberry Winter: My Early Years

Author: Margaret Mead

Read by: Unknown

About one-third of Mead's autobiography covers the years before she became an anthropologist and another third her field work in Samoa, in New Guinea, among the Omaha Indians, and in Bali. This part has much direct scholarly significance, for it throws light on her method of thinking about field data, personal reactions to cultures she made famous and professional relationships with her husbands, Reo Fortune and Gregory Bateson. The concluding chapters describe in subjective detail her role as mother and grandmother.

Sometimes a Shining Moment:
The Foxfire Experience

Author: Elliot Wigginton
Read by: Unknown

The book is divided into three parts. The first is the Foxfire story: how and why the first issue of Foxfire magazine was put together, what happened between its publication and the appearance of the Foxfire book and the immediate aftermath of that event the purpose of this book is to relate parts of it that might be most applicable and useful to the audience [of teachers] much of what principles touchstones lessons that the author learned in the earlier years are valid and applicable now as they were then and make up Part II. Part III shows the philosophy outlined in the second section at work in several actual twenty five to thirty pupil courses being offered within the constraints of fifty five minute periods inside the traditional public high school.

IC 324Grand Canyon Women : Lives Shaped By Landscape

Author: Betty Leavengood

Read by: Janet Spielmann

Grand Canyon Women tells the humorous and heartbreaking tales of eighteen remarkable women--river-runners, scientists, wranglers, architects, rangers, hikers and housewives--each of whom, in the midst of nature's indiscriminate universe, discovers her identity. Some come to the canyon by happenstance, others seek it out with passion and purpose. Most triumph over terrific challenges while others meet a darker fate. Grand Canyon Women takes readers to a place of life-defining discovery and to tidy homes of rural routine. No matter what the journey, these stories will inspire adventurous readers everywhere.
