

Using props to help your children retell stories develops their narrative skills. This is one of the skills researchers say is important for your children later to be able to understand what they read.

For Blue Sea by Robert Kalan

