Bunny Bedtime

"My bunnies must now go to bed," (Place both hands to cheek in a sleeping motion.)

The little mother rabbit said.

"But I will count them first to see if they have all come back to me.

1 bunny, 2 bunnies, 3 bunnies dear, (Count out on fingers.)

4 bunnies, 5 bunnies – yes, all are here. (Count out on fingers.)

They are the prettiest things alive – (Place arms together and rock them back and forth.)

My bunnies, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5." (Count out on fingers.)

Science and Social Studies

Mr. McGregor's garden- help children draw a map of Mr. McGregor's garden. Include elements from the story- shed, fence, signs, rows of vegetables, etc. Ask which vegetables the children would like to grow if they had a garden.

Plant herbs- plant herbs with seeds or starts in containers that can be kept in the kitchen. As the herbs grow children can sample them and be used in cooking.

Cooking:

Veggie tray- put together a tray of fresh vegetables for families to snack on. Talk about whether those types of vegetables were the kind that Peter ate or Mr. McGregor had growing in his garden.

These cute little flowerpots of hummus have baby carrots growing out of them.

Math:

Button sorting- Peter loses a button off the jacket his mother made him. Children can learn or practice sorting skills by collecting buttons from thrift stores, clothing being discarded, fabric stores, etc. If children under three are included in the activity, make sure buttons are large enough not to choke on.

Measuring how much a watering can holds- bring in a variety of watering cans and have children estimate how many cups of water each will hold. Then fill the watering cans with water to see how close their guess was.

Large motor:

Play a Hopping game or relay race. Talk with children about the difference between hopping and jumping. Do rabbits hop or jump?

Bulletin board: Use the theme “Hop into a good book” or create Mr. McGregor’s garden with pictures of the families in the garden.
