

Let's Talk About It – Program Scholar

Florence Blanchard
208-788-4450
fkblanchard@gmail.com
Bellevue, ID

Florence Blanchard is a freelance writer and historical researcher. She has served on the technical assistance team of the Idaho Heritage Trust since 2004 writing grant proposals and nominations to the National Register of Historic Places. She recently researched and has given public presentations on the life of Carrie Adele Strahorn, one of Hailey's founders. As Chairman of the Ezra Pound Association, 1994–2000, she organized literary readings around the valley and was instrumental in preserving the poet's birthplace. She served as Director of the College of Southern Idaho Extension Office in Hailey from 1982–90 and was named as Idaho Adult Education Director of the Year in 1989. She has a BA in English from the University of California Northridge. A resident of Bellevue, she is an avid reader with an imposing stack of books always at her bedside.